

SPICE ISLAND TOUR

with Janet DeNeefe

4 November - 13 November 2025 | 9 Nights / 10 Days

“ The island can be smelled before it can be seen. From more than 10 miles out to sea
a fragrance hangs in the air, and long before the
bowler-hat mountain hoves into view you know you are nearing land. ”

BANDA NEIRA

Banda Neira lies in the middle of ten small, sun-drenched volcanic islands loosely scattered in the wind-swept Banda Seas, south-east of Ambon. Often omitted from maps, the tranquil port was once an important harbour and the town itself, a centre of trade and V.O.C base.

For more than 3,000 years, regional, Arab and Chinese merchants exchanged spices and other treasures with the Bandanese but the main attraction was the glamorous nutmeg. Before the birth of Christ, it had already reached China and India and by 500 AD it had arrived in the Mediterranean. Even Sinbad the Sailor from the Arabian Nights was lured by its charm. By the 14th-century, it was gracing the table of European aristocracy and by 15th century Germany, a pound was worth "seven fat oxen".

A close-up photograph of a bowl filled with almonds. The almonds are light brown and have a smooth, slightly glossy texture. They are piled together, with some showing their pointed ends and others showing their flat sides. The background is a soft, out-of-focus light brown, suggesting the bowl's interior or a similar surface. The overall lighting is warm and even.

Can't stop thinking about the trip. It was so special to be in such remote and beautiful places with a history that is almost unbelievable if it weren't true. I feel so lucky to have been there and to share it with such a great bunch of people, guests and crew. Market trip today. Ginger, galangal, garlic, shallots, lemon grass and the Rhun spices that were cleared by quarantine. Yum.

RUN ISLAND

We land on the fabled island of Rhun, made famous in Nathaniel's Nutmeg. Once a major producer of nutmeg during the colonial era, the spice trade on Rhun Island was lucrative but marked by exploitation and conflict. The demand for nutmeg led to fierce competition among European powers, shaping the island's history and economy. Pulau Rhun was traded for Manhattan in the famous Treaty of Breda.

On Rhun we are greeted by Bapak Burhan, head of Rhun's only school, who will lead us to the island's hillside nutmeg plantation and the ruins of Nathaniel Courthope cottage. Morning tea of local sweets will be served with nutmeg juice and aromatic coffee.

Snorkelling nearby will follow.

DAY FOUR | Friday 7 November

BANDA NEIRA

At dusk, we arrive in Banda Neira, a picturesque small island in the Banda Archipelago. This region was once the world's only source of nutmeg and mace.

The Dutch secured the coveted nutmeg trade in the 17th Century, thus, changing the course of Indonesian history, but not without resistance. They also changed to course of world history. Despite their illustrious past, Banda Neira is a place where time seems to have stood still. We spend the next two nights anchored off this charming town.

We visit Banda Besar and the nutmeg plantation of Pongky Van den Broeke, the world's last perkeneer followed by a visit to a nearby old nutmeg forest with breath-taking ocean views.

A cooking class back on deck follows, then snorkeling. Late afternoon we enjoy a walk around the charming Banda Neira township, visiting Fort Belgica, the Hatta cottage and the Governor's Palace. Dinner at the majestic Maulana Hotel follows where we meet Mita Alwi, grand daughter of the late Des Alwi, affectionately named the 'King' of Banda Neira.

An aerial photograph of a tropical beach. The top left shows deep blue water transitioning into a shallow turquoise lagoon. A wide, white sandy beach curves along the shoreline. On the right side, there is a dense forest of lush green trees and palm trees. A small, thatched-roof hut is visible among the trees on the far right. Two small white boats are anchored in the shallow water near the top center. Several small figures of people are scattered across the beach. The text "Thank you!" is written in a white, cursive font in the bottom left corner.
